

Chilli Bean means Iga can do more in daily life

Iga is only able to sit on a chair without any support for a short while. Then, her complex disabilities means she begins to slump, loses control of her trunk, and is unable to maintain a proper position during everyday activities.

Our Chilli Bean stabilising cushion means she can now enjoy those activities whilst developing their own control.

We moulded the Chilli Bean to perfectly support Iga as she needed.

The formability of the cushion meant we could make minute adjustments to ensure her correct and comfortable stabilisation before we fixed the shape simply by removing the air between the internal 'beans'.

You can watch how here:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nxKeP2UYDko>

Unlike traditional cushions, Chilli Bean has the inbuilt ability to 'kiss' (keep its supportive shape). It's easy to do, and to adjust as Iga needs.

It also means Iga receives exactly the amount of support she needs. As a result, she can sit independently, has better trunk control, maintains balance, is calmer, and can relax to enjoy little things like playing on her tablet.

Find out more about our vacuum posture cushions here: <https://www.aatgb.com/posture-cushions/>

More information about Chilli Bean is available here: www.aatgb.com/chilli-bean/